Eldorado Stone introduces new, larger Mezzaluna artisan fire bowl

SAN DIEGO, CA - Eldorado Stone, manufacturer of the world's most believable architectural stone veneer, has debuted the new Mezzaluna artisan fire bowl. With a grand diameter of 48 inches, the Mezzaluna is larger than other artisan bowls in the manufacturer's outdoor collection.

"The Mezzaluna fire bowl in Oyster Shell adds an element of graceful luxury to any outdoor space," says Ramsay Hawfield, director of marketing for Eldorado Stone. "Its modern, sweeping arc design is a harmonious balance of function and art that transforms outdoor entertaining spaces."

The Southern California-based company handcrafts the Mezzaluna and other artisan fire bowls using a proprietary blend of limestone aggregate, minerals, and other materials. The smooth, velvety texture of the Mezzaluna offers the exquisite look and feel of natural limestone.

The creation of livable, relaxing outdoor spaces has been a popular design trend, as noted by The American Society of Landscape Architects. The Mezzaluna leads this trend by providing a stunning focal point for outdoor gatherings. With its graceful design and authentic appearance, the Mezzaluna fire bowl is an elegant new addition to Eldorado Stone's collection of artisan fire bowls and the perfect showpiece for luxury outdoor designs.
